LEGACIES OF BRITISH SLAVERY IN AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND

EDITED BY ZOË LAIDLAW, JANE LYDON

This book investigates the legacies of British slavery beyond Britain, focusing upon the colonisation of Australia and New Zealand, and explores why this history has been overlooked.

After August 1833, when the British Parliament abolished slavery in the British Caribbean, Mauritius and the Cape, the former slave-owners were paid compensation for the loss of their 'property'. New research has begun to show that many beneficiaries had ties to other parts of the British Empire, including the settler colonies of Australia, New Zealand, Canada and South Africa. Through a range of case studies, contributors to this collection trace the movement of people, goods, capital, and practices from the Caribbean to the new Australasian settler colonies. Chapters consider a range of places, people and themes to reveal the varied ways that slavery continued to shape imperial relationships, economic networks, and racial labour regimes after 1833.

FROM LOUISE BOURGEOIS TO YOKO ONO

Jewellery by Female Artists
 EDITED BY PETRA HESSE,
 LENA HOPPE

From Louise Bourgeois to Yoko Ono presents around 85 jewellery works by some 45 internationally renowned female visual artists from the 1920s to the present day.

Their jewellery pieces open up new, often surprising perspectives on their artistic production. Some pieces captivate with minimalist elegance, others with their expressive, sculptural presence or playful humour, with each unique work consolidating an artistic vision into a small personal statement. With its exhibition of the same name, the Museum für Angewandte Kunst Köln (MAKK; Museum of Applied Arts, Cologne) deliberately focuses on female standpoints, thus breaking with the male-dominated perception of avant-garde art jewellery.

GLÜCK AUF! BERGMÄNNISCHES PORZELLAN DES 18. JAHRHUNDERTS

Die Sammlung Middelschulte im Deutschen Bergbau-Museum Bochum
 EDITED BY DEUTSCHES BERGBAU-MUSEUM BOCHUM

Presents masterpieces from the Middelschulte collection at the German Mining Museum in Bochum.

From the mid-1740s on, imaginative depictions of mining scenes increasingly adorned vessels from the Meissen Royal Porcelain Manufactory. Prior to this, sculptural depictions of mining folk can even be found on Boettger stoneware and Boettger porcelain – with artists George Fritzsche Sr (probably 1697-1756) and Johann Joachim Kaendler (1706-1775) later each dedicating a series to them. The unique combination of mining and porcelain also informed and inspired other manufactories in the German-speaking realm.

ABNORMAL PERIPHERIES

Slovak and Czech performance art in the 1960s and 70s
 SAM CERMÁK

This book traces an early history of performance art from the former Czechoslovakia, which emerged in the 1960s and 1970s in the context of the Prague Spring and the subsequent policy of Normalization that brought on cultural censorship, prosecution, and state violence against artists.

The book draws on Czech and Slovak scholarship as well as primary research in archives, interviews, and fieldwork to dispel misreadings of visual and cultural idioms in pre-existing Anglophone scholarship about the region. Although the former Soviet Bloc is often equated with repression and lack of experimental art in public spaces, performance artists within the former Socialist Czechoslovakia often used public, semi-public and clandestine spheres to create their performances.

The art and architecture of Begum Samru
 MRINALINI RAJAGOPALAN

Begum Samru (b. circa 1750-d. 1836) was a north Indian woman ruler who used art and architecture to facilitate her social, political, and financial station in early modern India.

Rising from the ranks of courtesans in Mughal Delhi to become the commander of her own mercenary army, she later became the ruler of an independent territory of Sardhana (60 km northwest of Delhi). The begum (Urdu/ Hindustani title for noblewoman) was a trusted ally to the Mughal emperor and the English East India Company, two of the dominant political powers in north India at the time. As a sovereign ruler, she corresponded with two popes and King Louis Philippe of France, exchanging portraits, architectural drawings, and letters with these powerful men in addition to her Mughal counterparts in India.

Artist Fabian Gatermann uses light as the key material for his installations, objects, and multiples. He disengages from the classic scientific engineering system of testing; his works are unconventional experiments.

If we understand ‘transcendence’ as a multidimensional experience, can light as a medium grant us access to invisible realms? The artist Fabian Gatermann uses light as the key material for his installations, objects, and multiples in order to investigate new dimensions. Over the course of his work, Gatermann disengages himself from the classic scientific engineering system of testing; instead his works can be seen as open-ended unconventional experiments.

KAFKAESQUE CINEMA

ANGELOS KOUTSOURAKIS

For all its familiarity as a widely used term, 'Kafkaesque cinema' remains an often-baffling concept that is poorly understood by film scholars.

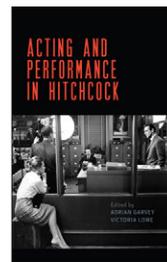

Taking a cue from Jorge Luis Borges' point that Kafka has modified our conception of past and future artists, and André Bazin's suggestion that literary concepts and styles can exceed authors and 'novels from which they emanate', this monograph proposes a comprehensive examination of Kafkaesque Cinema in order to understand it as part of a transnational cinematic tradition rooted in Kafka's critique of modernity, which, however, extends beyond the Bohemian author's work and his historical experiences. Drawing on a range of disciplines in the Humanities including film, literary, and theatre studies, critical theory, and history, Kafkaesque Cinema will be the first full-length study of the subject and will be a useful resource.

ACTING AND PERFORMANCE IN HITCHCOCK

EDITED BY ADRIAN GARVEY, VICTORIA LOWE

Despite his professed disdain for actors, this book argues that Hitchcock's films show a fascination with acting, and also contain many exceptional performances.

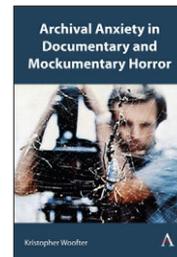

In this collection, the first on this subject, a group of distinguished film scholars analyse some key performances in Hitchcock's work, covering his career from the British silent era to the last years of the Hollywood studio system. The actors covered range from Ivor Novello to Tippi Hedren, with classic, and less well-known films discussed including Notorious, Stage Fright, Strangers on a Train and The Man Who Knew Too Much.

ARCHIVAL ANXIETY IN DOCUMENTARY AND MOCKUMENTARY HORROR

KRISTOPHER WOOFER

Examines Gothic realism in documentary and horror cinema, highlighting how films evoke archival anxiety and unsettling realities, from gothumentaries exploring ineffable subjects to mockumentaries and found-footage films addressing modernity's overwhelming and mediated nature.

This study concerns a Gothic realism in the dark, sensorial epistemologies emerging from intersections of documentary and horror cinema. From the ineffable subjects of horror documentaries and pseudo-documentaries, to the obsessive chroniclers of mockumentary horror cinema, the films examined here express generalised millennial and 21st-century archival anxiety around an unsettled and unsettling hypermediated reality.

CINEMA AND MACHINE VISION

DANIEL CHÁVEZ HERAS

Cinema and Machine Vision* unfolds the aesthetic, epistemic, and ideological dimensions of machine-seeing films and television using computers.

With its critical-technical approach, this book presents to the reader key new problems that arise as AI becomes integral to visual culture. It theorises machine vision through a selection of aesthetics, film theory, and applied machine learning research, dispelling widely held assumptions about computer systems designed to watch and make images on our behalf.

At its heart, Cinema and Machine Vision is an invitation for film and media scholars to critically engage with AI at a technical level.

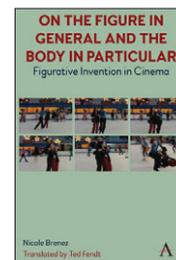

ON THE FIGURE IN GENERAL AND THE BODY IN PARTICULAR

Figurative Invention In Cinema
NICOLE BRENEZ, TRANSLATED
BY TED FENDT

These wide-ranging essays covering an array of film genres and styles propose a method of cinematic analysis and interpretation that foregrounds film's formal and plastic qualities.

Films fill our imagination with figures, figurines, and talismans. They ceaselessly rework the same archetypes and invent troubling prototypes – especially when they establish a deeper relationship to reality. How do we understand these presences that are both so characteristic and so diverse in cinema? How does film deal with bodies, movements, and gestures? Why are we so drawn to these shadows, silhouettes, and hypothetical beings?

Eight Lessons in Music Theory
from Beethoven's 'Ode to Joy'
MATTHEW BROWN

Explores how Beethoven's iconic 'Ode to Joy' theme and the finale of his Ninth Symphony encapsulate a masterclass in tonal composition, grounded in his rigorous training and deep theoretical knowledge.

Beethoven's Freude theme – or 'Ode to Joy' – is perhaps the most iconic melody ever created. This book sets out to show why the Freude theme has acquired this almost mythic status and what its use in the finale of the Ninth Symphony reveals about the mechanics of tonal composition. The book explains how the finale of the Ninth Symphony offers a crash course in music theory made possible by Beethoven's extensive training with Neefe, Haydn, Albrechtsberger, and others.

THE KOREAN WAR NOVEL

Rewriting History from the Civil War to the Post-Cold War
SUK KOO RHEE

The Korean War Novel examines the ways that novels written by Korean and Asian American writers have represented the Korean War.

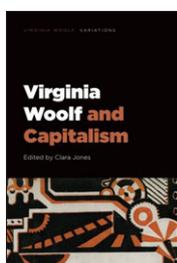

By studying the ideological contours of works by Richard E. Kim, Ahn Junghyo, Susan Choi, Ha Jin, Choi In-hun and Hwang Sok-yong, it documents the range of historical narratives that have alternatively framed the Korean War as an international war, a civil war, a reverse postcolonial war or ‘proxy war’, a war between the genders, and an attempt to de-escalate the Cold War itself. The dual role of North East Asians as both victims and willing agents of the Cold War comes into focus in revisiting the conflict from the post-Cold War perspective of decolonisation.

POLICING THE BEATS

Black music, racism and criminal injustice
LAMBROS FATSIS

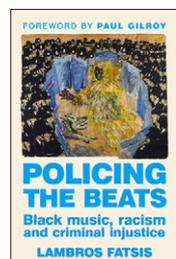

A bold analysis that exposes the racist policing of Black music.

The emergence of UK drill music made headline news, portraying it as a criminal enterprise instead of recognising it as an art form. This new rap subgenre, however, is neither the first nor the only Black music to be targeted this way.

Policing the beats rewinds the tape to demonstrate how music has been used as an instrument for policing Black people, from the era of colonial slavery to the present day, revealing the racist legal processes that make crimes out of rhymes.

This original and readable book offers the first in-depth account of the policing of Black music in Britain, highlighting the relationship between politics, culture and criminal (in)justice and inviting music lovers, scholars and activists to tune in.

SOVIET MATERIALITIES

Socialist things, environments and affects
EDITED BY MOLLIE ARBUTHNOT, CHRISTIANNA BONIN, GABRIELLA FERRARI

Soviet materialities* explores how material transforms our understanding of Soviet culture, from the textures of domestic space in 1960s apartment blocks to Gulag labour on the Moscow canal, and from avant-garde literary theory in the 1920s to conceptual art under perestroika.

It starts from the ethos that the material world shapes people and society. The Love of Books examines the affective bond between people and books in the UK.

In the context of the unprecedented abundance of media offering information, storytelling and entertainment, it investigates the attachment to print and digital books amongst readers from a range of backgrounds who read for pleasure, wish to be surrounded by print copies of books, and have trouble discarding books. Unlike existing research, which focuses on prestige, social status, and cultural capital, this study centres on meaning, materiality and emotion. Drawing on interviews and archive material, it shows how attachment emerges from the practical fusion of three elements that have so far been examined separately.

RACISM AND THE CULTURAL POLITICS OF PUNISHMENT

Constructing the 2011 English unrest
 CHLOE PEACOCK

Racism and the cultural politics of punishment examines the narratives, claims, and imaginaries that legitimise punitive and discriminatory criminal justice policies and practices.

Centring on the state's startlingly harsh response to the English 'riots' of 2011, the book combines unique insights from interviews with prosecutors, sentencers, defence lawyers, policymakers with analysis of media and political debates. It examines constructions of the unrest, its causes and how society should respond. In doing so, it explores the forms of ignorance and unknowing mobilised to justify the inequitable punishment of the 'rioters'.

AFFECT AS CULTURAL CRITIQUE

Methods for Ethnographic Uncovering
 EDITED BY DANIEL WHITE,
 EMMA E. COOK, ANDREA DE ANTONI

Affect as Cultural Critique assembles leading anthropologists, affect theorists, and artist-activist scholars to ask, what if the most constructive response to moments of ethnographic puzzlement was not the formulation of an answer but the cultivation of a feeling?

What if understanding the powerful effects of discourses requires somatic rather than semiotic exercises? And where habits of academic professionalism prohibit experiencing possible worlds – what if anthropology as a discipline could leverage affect to differently connect and cultivate collaboration with others?

BLACK SOCIALITIES

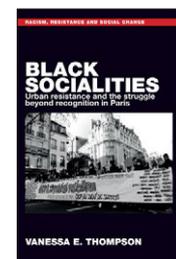

Urban resistance and the struggle beyond recognition in Paris

VANESSA E. THOMPSON

This is a cutting-edge exploration of black urban politics in Parisian racialised working class and working poor districts, the formation of abolition geography, and the possibilities of new forms of political blackness.

In Black Socialities: urban resistance and the struggle beyond recognition in Paris, Vanessa E. Thompson argues that black urban politics in the French banlieues are multi-racial and spatially grounded towards abolition. Based on a close engagement with urban black activist practices against racial imagery in the city, policing and state racism, and housing insecurity, she shows how radical anti-racism goes beyond struggles for recognition and unfolds alongside new formations of political blackness that is based on urban conviviality.

PRACTICAL RATIONALITY, LEARNING AND CONVENTION

Essays in the Philosophy of Education

CHRISTOPHER WINCH

Selected writings of Christopher Winch on topics on and related to the philosophy of education from 1988 until the present.

This collection of articles by one of the leading philosophers of education in the English-speaking world takes up themes in the philosophy of language, epistemology and the philosophy of learning to shed light on philosophical puzzles concerning learning, concept formation, knowing how, the following of norms and whether there is a single concept of rationality that can be applied universally. Winch writes from a Wittgensteinian perspective, seeking dissolution rather than solution to philosophical problems.

THE GREAT TRANSFORMATION

How Modern Thinkers Reimagined the Classical View of Justice

KEVIN DOOLEY

Explores how modern redefinitions of key concepts such as nature, freedom, and virtue have reshaped our understanding of justice and altered how states assess right and wrong.

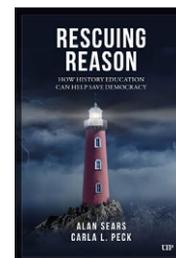

This book examines the definitional differences between classical and modern political theory as they relate to the constituent parts of justice. Since the earliest days of political philosophy, justice has been understood as the goal of the state. And most thinkers have spent a considerable time addressing the components of justice – nature, happiness, freedom, equality, and virtue.

RESCUING REASON

How History Education Can Help Save Democracy
ALAN SEARS, CARLA L. PECK

Rescuing Reason tackles the pressing crisis of civic engagement and public deliberation, drawing on Canadian and international examples, with a particular emphasis on Canada's democratic landscape.

The book argues that K-12 public education has become too narrowly focused on utilitarian aims – such as financial literacy and job preparation – at the expense of the humanities, especially history. Educators Alan Sears and Carla L. Peck contend that this shift has undermined the cultivation of well-rounded citizens equipped for meaningful participation in civic life.

Rescuing Reason makes a compelling case for the vital role of history education in nurturing civic competencies.

TRANSNATIONAL NATIONALISM IN THE MEDITERRANEAN SEA

Origins and Aftermaths

LESLIE ROGNE SCHUMACHER

Explores how nationalist projects in the modern Mediterranean absorbed, reshaped or erased shared intercultural identities, offering five historical case studies from Italy, Greece, Turkey, Lebanon and Libya.

The study of modern Mediterranean history and society has long featured debates over cross-cultural values, norms and perspectives in the region. The rise of nationalism in the Mediterranean in the 19th and early 20th centuries has led scholars to explore the tension between national and transnational group identities across the sea and its basin.

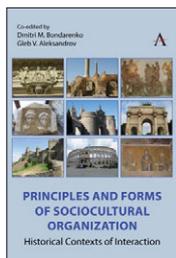

This book engages in this debate and provides five historical case studies, centred on the national experiences of Italy, Greece, Turkey, Lebanon and Libya.

EDITED BY DMITRI M. BONDARENKO, GLEB V. ALEKSANDROV

To show the non-linear nature of social evolution, it is crucially important to discuss cases from different cultural areas and different historical periods, including our time, as well as different levels of overall sociocultural complexity.

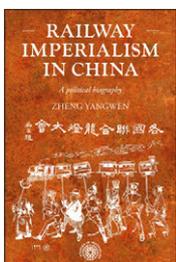

This anthology includes chapters that explore case studies covering a wide range of societies of the Old and the New World ranging from ancient to modern contexts. Respectively, the chapters are based on different kinds of sources – archaeological, historical, anthropological (ethnographic), and sociological.

RAILWAY IMPERIALISM IN CHINA

A political biography
YANGWEN ZHENG

Railway imperialism in China: A political biography* is the first and most comprehensive book on history and politics of all major railways in China from the late Qing to the post-Mao era.

It investigates the transformation of railways from a bête noire within discussions about reform to the emblematic ‘engines for empire’ as foreign powers used it to carve out spheres of control, and as an instrument of nation making for Chinese regimes. The book introduces new archival sources and a wide range of secondary materials. Boldly conceived, it situates the making of modern China in the context of British, Russian, German, Japanese, French, Belgian and American expansion.

EVA GORE-BOOTH: IRISH RADICAL POET, REBEL AND REFORMER

Anniversary edition
SONJA TIERNAN

An acclaimed biography of poet, pacifist and political firebrand Eva Gore-Booth.

The Irish poet and activist Eva Gore-Booth (1870-1926) led a life defiantly at odds with her aristocratic origins. Choosing to live and work among the poor of Manchester, she campaigned on behalf of barmaids, circus performers, flower sellers and pit-brow lasses, her partner, Esther Roper, at her side.

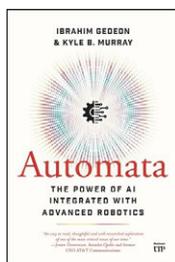

Gore-Booth was tireless in her pursuit of justice. She was a militant pacifist during the First World War, a champion of Irish independence and a pioneering thinker on gender and sexuality. She was also a prolific author, publishing nineteen volumes of poetry and prose that reflect the full force of her radical convictions.

WIGMORE ON CARBON MONOXIDE

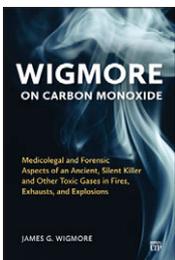

Medicolegal and Forensic Aspects of an Ancient, Silent Killer and Other Toxic Gases in Fires, Exhausts, and Explosions
JAMES G. WIGMORE

Wigmore on Carbon Monoxide offers a compelling exploration of the history and medicolegal aspects of carbon monoxide, humanity's ancient and silent killer.

Odourless, non-irritating, and invisible, carbon monoxide (CO) has haunted human civilisation since the discovery of fire. For centuries, unexplained nighttime deaths were attributed to witchcraft or demons, rather than the insidious effects of poor ventilation and combustion.

Despite advances in technology, CO poisoning remains a persistent threat today, arising from water heaters, gas stoves, charcoal barbecues, Zambonis, camp stoves, tent heaters, diesel generators, and power washers.

NEGOTIATING IDENTITY CONFLICTS IN A FRAGMENTING WORLD ORDER

EDITED BY PAUL WILLEM MEERTS, MARK ANSTEY

Rapid systemic change within and across nations disrupts traditional identity formation processes, and how identity groups manage their differences.

Fragmentation – a breakdown at many levels along many divides – is the consequence of a world now of multiple identity groups making maximalist claims on their governments and each other. At an international level a new tripolar imperialism is in evidence, globalisation is fading in the face of US tariffs and the capacity of the United Nations to deliver to its mission has been fundamentally eroded. At the level of individual states after a brief surge, democracy has been in retreat for two decades.

DEMOCRACY'S SECOND ACT

Why Politics Needs the Public
PETER MACLEOD, RICHARD JOHNSON

Democracy isn't broken – it's stuck. Around the world, people are growing angry and polarised – not because they've stopped caring, but because democracy has stopped evolving. The result isn't apathy – it is a rising sense of political futility.

In Democracy's Second Act, Peter MacLeod and Richard Johnson argue that the First Act of democracy – anchored in voting rights and representative government – achieved extraordinary gains. Free elections, near-universal suffrage, and the peaceful transfer of power reshaped societies and expanded human freedom. But these achievements represent the promise of democracy, not its completion.

The book concludes with a transcript of a conversation between Zbigniew Janowski (an American philosopher of Polish descent) and the author of this book, discussing the influence of two powerful ideologies born in the 19th century, Marxism and liberalism, on the intellectual and political life of contemporary nations.

RICHARD BODEK

Set against the shattered landscape of post-war Berlin, Death in the Rubble follows a nurse battling addiction who murders her victims to buy gifts for her lover – a married police detective.

In 1949, the year of the Berlin airlift and the founding of the two post-war German states, Elisabeth Kusian (nurse, black marketeer, morphine and methamphetamine addict, and pathological liar) garroted and dismembered two people in a mini crime spree. The five Nordic countries (Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden) frequently attract attention as examples of a ‘Nordic model’.

The meanings of the term vary, but especially since the global financial crisis of 2008-2009 the Nordic countries have often been portrayed positively, as examples of economic dynamism, innovation and social equality. Studies of these images of the Nordic countries and their international circulations have opened new horizons for understanding the global influences upon the Nordic model.

KGB LITERATI

Spy Fiction and State Security in the Soviet Union
FILIP KOVACEVIC

Once out of active service, many former spies have turned to writing spy fiction. They drop the dagger and pick up the pen. Some are very successful, like James Bond’s creator Ian Fleming or the novelists John Le Carré and Graham Greene. Their Soviet counterparts have rarely been afforded the same attention or examination.

Drawing on materials from KGB archives and Soviet publications long out of print, KGB Literati offers the first-ever account of spy fiction written, frequently with institutional support, by Soviet intelligence and counterintelligence officers. Spy fiction can give insights into the operational workings of clandestine agencies and the personal dimensions of secret service work.

US CULTURAL DIPLOMACY AFTER THE COLD WAR

Decline, recovery, and fall

EDITED BY JEFFREY H. MICHAELS, GILES SCOTT-SMITH

In the decades following the USSR's collapse, the US has gone from unrivalled hegemon to a position of relative decline.

With America 'triumphant' after 1991, its culture, like its diplomatic, military and economic power, remained unmatched. Such favourable circumstances seemed to undercut the need for cultural diplomacy. Why should the US government sell a product that was already selling so well? After 9/11, however, it was apparent the US image was less popular than previously assumed. To reverse this negative image, cultural diplomacy was revived.

HEALTHCARE IN NORTHERN IRELAND

Politics, Policies and Management, 1921-72

DONNACHA SEÁN LUCEY

This book focuses on the policies, politics and management of health care in Northern Ireland from 1921 to 1973.

It explores the development of Northern Irish health care from its highly localist and fragmented origins to the most centrally managed system within the National Health Service. At the core of this analysis is an exploration of the interest groups that were progenitors of change or, conversely, strongly resisted reform. The work looks at poor law, municipal and voluntary provision in the interwar years. The 1940s is focused on, including the experience of war and Northern Ireland's involuntary adoption of the welfare state. The discussion on the post-war decades assesses the relationship between health and politics.

This book presents biographies of six bishops from the medieval German empire, translated into English for the first time.

The bishop was a ubiquitous figure across medieval Europe, providing leadership to the community of Christians within dioceses and linking day-to-day life to centres of political power and ecclesiastical authority. They were particularly prominent in the kingdom of Germany, where the most powerful churchmen led armies and advised kings. The texts collected here, originating in the tenth to thirteenth centuries, offer readers a lively entrée to medieval social, religious and political conditions, as well as fascinating biographical details and information about law, architecture, warfare and government.

THE ART OF BEING A STRANGER

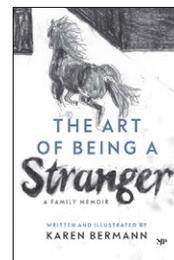

A Family Memoir

KAREN BERMANN

Karen Bermann grew up in the mad orbit of her father, Fritz, the rebellious child of a Viennese Orthodox Jewish family who fled Europe alone as an adolescent in the late 1930s.

An irreverent, comic, rageful man with three names, who spoke three languages, lived on three continents, and always kept his papers in order, Fritz lived a life shaped by survival. In this memoir, told in alternating voices in brief, lyrical episodes, Bermann explores not only the mystery of her father but also the inheritance he passed on: intergenerational trauma, fragile familial bonds, and a fraught sense of belonging.

The Art of Being a Stranger is a darkly funny narrative told in poetry, prose, and mixed-media drawings.

WHITEWASH

Poland and the Jews

JAN GRABOWSKI

In Whitewash, Jan Grabowski brings to light the dangerous practice of Holocaust distortion through the lens of the Polish political landscape.

Of the three million Polish Jews who found themselves under German occupation during World War Two, no more than 1 per cent survived the war. Poland was left with a singular burden: the responsibility to safeguard the memory of this immeasurable tragedy. Instead, Poland has emerged as a global leader in Holocaust denial and distortion, all in service of preserving the myth of an unblemished national identity.

Deeply personal and brutally honest, this extended analysis intertwines Grabowski's experiences and those of his family in Poland with a sharp critique of the state's long-standing policy of Holocaust distortion.

WRITTEN IN BLOOD

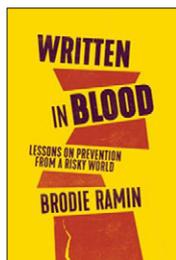

Lessons on Prevention from a Risky World
BRODIE RAMIN

Written in Blood is an urgent exploration of how disasters happen – and how they can be prevented.

Award-winning author and physician Brodie Ramin, trained in prevention through his work in primary care and addiction, explores how we can scale up preventative strategies and apply them at a societal level: from the wreckage of plane crashes and pandemics to nuclear catastrophes, industrial accidents, and natural disasters.

Through gripping case studies – from the Notre Dame fire to Fukushima – Ramin dissects the human errors, systemic failures, and overlooked warning signs that lead to catastrophe. At its core, the book argues that prevention is not only possible but essential – we must act before disaster strikes, rather than learning only in its aftermath.

THE MAKING OF A DOCTOR

The Hidden Realities of Medicine
MICHELLE IZMAYLOV

The business of medicine is a complex mix of thorns and roses – where the reality of profit-driven priorities from corporations and insurance companies clashes with the compassion of clinicians providing care at great personal cost.

Through the perspectives of patients, physicians, clinicians, medical students, and nurses, The Making of a Doctor highlights the challenges faced by both patients and healthcare providers. This collection of essays uncovers pivotal moments – from the denial of essential medical care by insurance companies to the emotional toll that this work has had on clinicians, some of whom have considered leaving medicine due to the pressures they face – to demonstrate the dire state of our medical systems.

SURREALIST WOMEN ARTISTS AND MENTAL ILLNESS

EDITED BY JENNY ANGER

Female mental illness has been a prominent and complicated theme in surrealist cultural traditions, including the idealisation of women with mental illness in works such as André Breton's Nadja (1928).

Art historians have examined this tendency before, but to date there has been no comprehensive study of the lived reality of women surrealist artists with mental illness. How did women's experience and their work intersect with this romanticised vision? Was the masculine dream of feminised, 'mad' genius prohibitive or productive for these women artists? After establishing the ideological field within which these women worked, the book turns to case studies of well-known and some lesser-known artists, including Ángeles Santos, Leonora Carrington, Dora Maar, Claude Cahun, Frida Kahlo, Meret Oppenheim, Sonja Sekula, and Unica Zürn.
